Let the Lessons in the first Nocturn be read from the Prophecy of Jeremiah in order.

First Lesson. Jer. xii. 1-5.

The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel: Cursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this covenant, which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying, Obey my voice, and do them, according to all which I command you: so shall ye be my people, and I will be your God: that I may perform the oath which I have sworn unto your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

In die qua invocavi te.

hear-est me. †Thou hast plead-ed.

Then answered I, and said, So be it, O Lord. Then the Lord said unto me, Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them. For I earnestly protested unto your fathers in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto this day, rising early and protesting, saying, Obey my voice. Yet they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear, but walked every one in the imagination of their evil heart: therefore I will bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do; but they did them not. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

And the Lord said unto me, A conspiracy is found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem. They are turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, which refused to hear my words; and they went after other gods to serve them: the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers. Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon them, which they shall not be able to escape; and though they shall cry unto me, I will not hearken unto them. Then shall the cities of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem go, and cry unto the gods unto whom they offer incense: but they shall not save them at all in the time of their trouble. For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Judah; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem have ye set up altars to that shameful thing, even altars to burn incense unto Baal. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

Middle Lessons from a Sermon of Blessed Maximius, Bishop.

Lesson iiiij.

Of the twenty-first psalm which hath been read in its turn : we ought first diligently to consider what it containeth in the superscription : that having understood its beginning we may the more easily grasp its meaning, and with the heading having been revealed the other parts may be rightly inferred. For it is inscribed thus, Unto the end, for the beginning of the morning, a psalm for David himself. Unless I be mistaken, the beginning of the morning always precedeth the rising of the sun : and before the gleaming brilliance of rays illuminateth the world : dawn putteth an end to the darkness of night, and gradually disperseth the gloom of blindness : a certain appearance and light is poured out upon all things. And while the world hath lain in confusion as if under a wall of darkness : with the arrival of dawn a divers variety of appearances is distinguished. That is, where previously all things had been blind : the eyes of all are renewed. For while night in a certain way stealeth the eyes of the world : dawn restoreth. And thus we enjoy beforehand the beginning of the dawn : that afterward we may the more gloriously receive the brilliance of the sun. But seeing that as the Apostle saith, the law is spiritual :
and spiritual things are to be compared with spiritual things: this is, I think, to be designated Sun of Righteousness, that is, Christ the Lord, who unto us, being sunk in the darkness of ignorance and the blindness of sins: hath poured out the light of his heavenly doctrine. And he hath inserted the eyes of the heart which we had not, and like so many rays hath sent forth his apostles: who might deliver us from the night of most disgraceful transgression, and with the darkness of sins by degrees dissolved in us, by the rising of the dawn to accustom us, that we being perfected should be able to bear more easily the heat of the sun. That is, firstly they would instruct us in simpler precepts: by which we might be rendered more capable of heavenly mysteries. And thus by the dawn of this Sun of Righteousness all the darkness of sins is destroyed: as the prophet himself saith in the person of the Lord, In the morning I shall destroy all the ungodly that are in the land: That is, when the Sun of Righteousness dawndeth in us, who are the dwelling place of the Lord: every unjust thought is overthrown. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.

Insurrexerunt in me.

Palm Sunday.

†But as for me, I counted myself as one that was dead upon the earth. V. They gave me gall to eat: and when I was thirsty they gave me vinegar to drink. †But.

Now the whole of this psalm is arranged according to the person of the Lord the Saviour: granted that more things are set down about him in the New Testament. Thus it saith, My God, my God, look upon me: and so forth. Why doth it plead the cause of the man that was assumed: as it would appear in a certain way to ask, saying, God of all, who art my God: why hast thou forsaken me? For I myself am aware of nothing. For according to the prophet he knew not sin: nor was there any deceit in his mouth. For he saith these things, that he might show that He was forsaken on account of us of whose sins He bore: and that seeing we might learn to die for Him who is both holy and just, seeing that He died for our sin. Finally in his passion he used this expression as we read in the Gospel: Eli, Eli, lama sabacthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? He used, I say, this expression: that what the prophecy had announced, would be proven by the outcome. And because what followeth is mostly evident: let us examine the verse in which it saith, But as for me, I am a worm, and no man. Why doth the Lord of every creature wish to be compared to a worm? We are indeed able to impute this humility (which is the greatest virtue of the saints) firstly as Moses professest himself an irrational animal before God, and David often calleth himself a flea. But I think rather this ought to be accepted: seeing that a worm is procreated with no admixture of a foreign body from without, but from the pure earth alone: thus is it compared to the Lord, since the Saviour himself is begotten from the chaste Mary alone.

Noli esse michi Domine.

5. Resp. VIII.

E not a a stran-ger to me, O Lord, spare me in the e-vil day, let all them be confound-ed that per-se-cute me. †And I shall not be con-found-ed. V. Let all mine en-emies be confounded: that seek after my soul to destroy.
Lesson vi.

We also read in the books of Moses of worms produced from manna. The comparison is deservedly clear and just. If indeed the worm is brought forth from manna: and the Lord Christ is begotten of a virgin, why should I not rather have said that Mary herself is manna: for she is subtle, splendid, sweet, and a virgin. Who, just as if coming from heaven: poured forth to all the peoples of the churches food sweeter than honey. Whoever shall neglect to eat and to feed upon it: shall not be able to have life in himself, as the Lord himself saith, Except one shall eat my flesh, and drink my blood: he shall have no life in him. But rather that very food shall be turned into judgment unto him: as the Apostle saith, He that eateth and drinketh unworthily: eateth and drinketh damnation to himself. Which was prophesied subtly to the children of Israel in the Old Testament. For to those acting against divine precepts, worms were produced: that is, avengers and punishers of stubbornness, which similitude sheweth Christ the Lord. Whom he that hath neglected to consume pleasant food and sweet drink: must suffer to judge, as he himself saith, For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son. Moreover insofar as it saith, They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture: we learn that this was done in the Gospel, insofar as the four soldiers which crucified the Saviour divided his garments among themselves in four parts. But for the garment which was not sewn together, but was woven from the top: they took it by lot. Let us consider, then, what these garments are: which the soldiers, and if you will, what the coat. I think that the garments are the prophecies, or the lessons of the heavenly Scriptures: by which the sacrament of Christ the Lord was announced. Which prophecies one singing, and another announcing everywhere, the adversaries of the Saviour, that is the wicked heretics.
which, just as the soldiers, daily lay impious hands upon him: by so doing wilfully divide among themselves, and the garments of the one body distribute through divers members: and despoiling the Lord, clothe in their own false doctrines. Moreover his coat which was not sewn: we can allow to be his heavenly wisdom, seeing that it was woven from above. For our wisdom which is human, is sewn together. For it is sewn together when we give children to studies, deliver them to grammarians, instruct them by philosophers: that the wisdom which was not in them might be acquired. But the wisdom of the Lord is not sewn: it is not acquired. For he did not learn from a master: as the Jews themselves say, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned? And he himself saith, My doctrine is not mine: but his that sent me. This is what he saith of that woven from above. In which garment or in all which garments the catholic Church hath ever been clothed: as the prophet saith, Upon thy right hand did stand the queen in a vesture of gold. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.

At that time. When Jesus drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and was come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent he two disciples, saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them unto me. And that which followeth.

_Homily of the Venerable Bede, Priest._

(24. Book 1. of Homilies.)

The Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus, who that he should suffer for the salvation of the human race had come down from heaven to earth, the hour of his passion drawing near, willed to draw near to the place of his passion: that by this it might indeed be made clear, that he would suffer not reluctantly but of his own will. He willed to come on an ass and to be called by the crowd king, and also to be praised, that instructed even by this everyone might acknowledge him to be the Christ whom afore time the promised prophecy had designated was the one to come thusly. He willed to come five days before the passover, as we have learned from the Gospel of John, that by this too he might shew himself to be the spotless lamb: which would take away the sins of the world. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.

Lesson viij.

Of course the paschal lamb by whose immolation the people of Israel were delivered from Egyptian slavery: had been ordered to be selected five days before the passover, that is on the tenth day of the month, and immolated on the fourteenth day of the month at evening: signifying him which was to redeem us by his blood, five days before the passover, that is this day, escorted with great joy and praise of the people preceding and following, he came into the temple of God, and was there teaching daily. Who finally after the fifth day was ended, having observed thus far the completion of the sacraments of the old passover: also delivered the new sacraments to be observed thereafter to the disciples. Having gone out to the mount of Olives he was seized by the Jews: and in the morning was crucified. On that very day he redeemed us from the domination of the Devil: in which the ancient people of the Hebrews by the immolation of a lamb, had cast aside the yoke of Egyptian slavery. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.

And a little above, But he was wounded for our transgressions: and with his stripes we are healed. But the hearts of envious leaders: preferred rather to persecute than to believe him in everything which he providentially carried out. And many wretched people strove more to hand over to death the Author of life: than by him to be brought to life. To be sure, let us, avoiding the blindness of those faithless ones, rather follow the example of those which faithfully praised the Lord: and let us investigate his mystical path with mystical interpretation, as is proper. The ass and colt sitting upon which he came to Jerusalem, denote those of simple hearts among each of the people, namely the Jews and the Gentiles, whom governing and restraining from harmful freedom by his authority: he leadeth to the vision of heavenly peace. Indeed Jerusalem is interpreted, Vision of peace. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.

Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up a cry or prayer for them: for I will not hear them in the time that they cry unto me for their trouble. What hath my beloved to do in mine house, seeing she hath wrought lewdness with many, and the holy flesh is passed from thee? when thou doest evil, then thou rejoicest. The Lord called thy name, A green olive tree, fair, and of goodly fruit: with the noise of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken. For the Lord of hosts, that planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee, for the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves to provoke me to anger in offering incense unto Baal. But, O Lord of hosts, that judgest righteously, that tryest the reins and the heart, let me see thy vengeance on them: for unto thee have I revealed my cause. Therefore thus saith the Lord of the men of Anathoth, that seek thy life, saying, Prophesy not in the name of the Lord, that thou die not by our hand: Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Behold, I will punish them: the young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall die by famine: and there shall be no remnant of them. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

Third Lesson. fer. xj. 23-xij. 6.

OR I will bring evil upon the men of Anathoth, even the year of their visitation. Righteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee: yet let me talk with thee of thy judgments: Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? wherefore are all they happy that deal very trea-cherously? Thou hast planted them, yea, they have taken root: they grow, yea, they bring forth fruit: thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins. But thou, O Lord, know-est me: thou hast seen me, and tried mine heart toward thee: pull them out like sheep for the slaughter, and prepare them for the day of slaughter. How long shall the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? the beasts are consumed, and the birds; because they said, He shall not see our last end. If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan? For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, even they have dealt treacherously with thee. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

They have made it desolate, and being desolate it mourneth unto me; the whole land is made desolate, because no man layeth it to heart. The spoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderness: for the sword of the Lord shall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no flesh shall have peace. They have sown wheat, but shall reap thorns: they have put themselves to pain, but shall not profit: and they shall be ashamed of your revenues because of the fierce anger of the Lord. And it shall come to pass, after that I have plucked them out I will return, and have compassion on them, and will bring them again, every man to his heritage, and every man to his land. And it shall come to pass, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, The Lord liveth; as they taught my people to swear by Baal; then shall they be built in the midst of my people. But if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up and destroy that ing, Take the girdle that thou hast got, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. So I went, and hid it by Euphrates, as the Lord commanded me. Thus saith the Lord God, Turn unto me: and ye shall be saved.

This evil people, which refuse to hear my words, which walk in the imagination of their heart, and walk after other gods, to serve them, and to worship them, shall even be as this girdle, which is good for nothing. For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have I caused to cleave unto me the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah, saith the Lord; that they might be unto me for a people, and for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: but they would not hear. But the VV before the Lessons are said in order.

On this day at Vespers and so until the Mass of the morrow let the bells be rung as on Sundays: and then after the final ringing at Mass let them not be rung until the Gloria in excelsis at the Easter Vigil: nor henceforth until Compline in the same Vigil. At this Vespers let no Memorial be made, on account of the solemnity of the Supper, unless any Double Feast shall be celebrated on this Wednesday.
On this day Vespers of Saint Mary is not said in convent: nor the rest which is customarily said: except only the service of the day until the morrow of the Octave of Easter.

If the Feast of the Annunciation of Blessed Mary or any other Double Feast by chance shall fall on this day: unless it be the Feast of the Place or the Dedication of the Church: let it be solemnly celebrated there, but Vespers of the feria is said in the aforementioned way: with a solemn Memorial of the Feast. If however from this day until the Octave of Easter any Double Feast shall occur: let it be deferred until after the Octave of Easter: and where it can conveniently be celebrated, of course where it is able to have both Vespers.
