THe word of the Lord, which we all ought to hear not only attentively but wisely, and which we ought to obey with humility and delight, everywhere preserving the balance of its moderation, so that neither the sheep might be without pasture, nor the shepherds without food : giveth some commands especially to us alone, and some generally both to us and to you. For unto us, that is the servants, whom that head of the household, the Lord of all things, hath appointed for this purpose in his great house, that we should minister the word of grace to his people : is especially enjoined the duty of holy preaching : but generally to both us and to you there is enjoined a salutary obedience to his commands. In which commands, as in most plentiful dishes, a spiritual supply of heavenly delights so aboundeth, that in the word of God there is ample provision for the perfect to eat : and ample provision for the little one to suck.

Second Lesson.

FOr there is both the milky drink, by which the tender infancy of the faithful may be nourished : and the solid food from which the robust youth of the full-grown may receive a spiritual increase of holy virtue. There provision is fully made for the salvation of those whom the Lord vouchsafeth to save : there is to be found what is suitable to every age, there what is agreeable to every profession. There we hear the precepts we ought to obey : there we learn the rewards we may expect. There is the command which teacheth us in the letter, and leadeth us to knowledge : there the promise which draweth us through grace and leadeth us to glory. The Lord therefore, wanting to point out the duty of the servants which he had set over his people : saith what we have heard in the Gospel, Who (thinkest thou) is the faithful and wise steward, whom his lord setteth over his family, to give them their measure of wheat in due season ? Blessed is that servant, whom when his lord shall come, he shall find so doing.

Third Lesson.

WHich of these is the Lord, brethren ? Without doubt the Christ, who saith to his disciples :
You call me Master, and Lord ; and [76r.] you say well, for so I am. Which likewise is the family of this Lord ?
To be sure it is those whom the Lord himself hath redeemed out of the hand of the enemy, and hath subjected to his own dominion. This family : is the catholic church, which with abundant fertility is spread throughout the world, and glorieth herself to have been redeemed by the precious blood of her Lord. For the Son of man, as he himself saith, Came not to be ministered to, but to minister, and to give his life a redemption for many. He is also the Good Shepherd : who laid down his life for his sheep. Therefore the flock of the Good Shepherd : is itself the family of the Redeemer. That the steward, however, should be him who is both faithful and wise : Paul the Apostle sheweth unto us, who, speaking of himself and his companions, saith, Let a man so account of us as ministers of Christ, and the dispensers of the mysteries of God. Here now it is required among the dispensers, that a man be found faithful.

Fourth Lesson.

BUt that none of you stewards should suppose to have been made apostles alone, and that the lazy servant should unfaithfully disregard the duty of spiritual warfare and carelessly slumber : that blessed Apostle himself, shewing bishops and likewise stewards, saith, For a bishop must be without crime, as the steward of God. We are therefore the servants of the householder, we are the stewards of the Lord : let us pay out to you as much measure of wheat as we receive. What indeed this measure of wheat is, if we inquire : the blessed Apostle sheweth it also to us, saying, According as God hath divided to every one the measure of faith. Inasmuch then as Christ calleth it a measure of wheat : Paul nameth it the measure a faith. That we might acknowledge spiritual wheat to be none other : than a venerable sacrament of the Christian faith.

Lesson v.

OF this measure of wheat, we impart to you in the name of the Lord : as often as, illuminated by the gift of spiritual grace, we debate according to the rule of true faith. And the stewards receive the same measure of the Lord's wheat : when the word of truth is heard by the servants of God. We speak now of the very measure of wheat : as from it, just as God distributeth, all are fed. Thus let us take the food of right living, that we may be able to attain to the reward of eternal life : believing in him, hoping in him, loving him before all and in all, whereby he both supplieth sustenance to us that we not falter in the way : and keepeth the reward, that we may rejoice in <our> native land. Christ indeed is our food : Christ shall be our reward. Christ is the food and consolation of faithful travellers : himself the satiety and exultation of the blessed at rest. And so to him pertaineth the measure of wheat : of which the Lord hath said, Sell what you possess and give alms. Make to yourselves bags which grow not old, a treasure in heaven which faileth not : where no thief approacheth, nor moth corrupteth. A great good it is, dearly beloved brethren, and very agreeable, and very convenient, and to be most of all sought for by Christians : that all should not take delight to falter into evil, but all should strive to make progress for the better.

Sixth Lesson.

[76v.] E are the trees in the field, brethren, planted by the Lord :
moreover God is our husbandman.
He raineth upon us, he tendeth us : he giveth fruitfulness, he furnisheth the grace of bearing fruit. The rain from God is the preaching of the holy word : the cultivation by God is the infusion of spiritual grace. God therefore raineth upon us by teaching : cultivateth by helping. When he raineth, he taketh from us the blindness of ignorance : when he cultivateth, he giveth abundance of right living. When he raineth, he watereth the earth of our hearts : however when he cultivateth, he rooteth out the thorns and thistles of worldly desire from the earth itself. Therefore we ought to be fruitful by heavenly rains : we ought to respond with suitable increase to the hands of the heavenly husbandman. And if not all trees are equally able to bring forth fruit : nevertheless none ought to remain barren in the Lord's field.

Many of us, brethren, are afear'd by the threat of that sentence : where it is said, Every tree that doth not yield good fruit shall be cut down, and cast into the fire. But if barrenness is cast into the fire : what shall robbery merit ? Or who shall accept what another shall produce, if he shall always burn who doth not give of his own ? And if judgement shall be without mercy to him which hath not shewn mercy : what kind of judgement shall be to him who hath done robbery ? Let us fear therefore, brethren : let us fear our deeds.

A Homily of Blessed Gregory, Pope.
(On the Gospels, Book I. Homily ix.)¹⁵

THe reading of the holy Gospel, dearly beloved brethren, moveth us anxiously to consider, lest we who are seen to have received more in this world than others : should be more gravely judged by the Creator of the world. When indeed the gifts are increased : the reckoning of the gifts also increaseth. Let him therefore be all the more humble and all the more ready to give service to God from his gifts : seeing that the more will he be obliged to render an account. Behold, a man who is departing abroad : calleth his servants, and distributeth unto them talents that they may trade therewith. However, after a long time he returneth for a valuation of the account : them that have done well he rewardeth for the increase of profit, but he condemneth the servant who is devoid of good works.

Lesson viij.

Ho other, then, is that man who setteth out abroad, except our Redeemer, who hath departed into heaven in that flesh which he had assumed ? For earth is the proper place for the flesh. Which is led as it were into a far country :

when it is established in heaven by our Redeemer. But that man travelling into a far country, delivered his goods unto his servants : for he granted spiritual gifts unto his faithful people. And to one he gave five talents : to another two : and to be sure to another he entrusted one. Now the bodily senses are five : evidently sight, hearing, taste, smell, and touch. Therefore by the five talents : are signified the gift of the five senses, that is outward knowledge. To be sure by the two are indicated wit and work. But the name indicated by the one talent : is understanding alone. Now he who had received five talents, gained another five : for some there be that while yet unable to penetrate the inward and mystical, yet, striving for the heavenly homeland, teach rightly all whom they can, by those very outward things that they have received. And as they keep themselves safe from carnal wantonness, from embracing earthly things, and also from delights of the eyes : they also restrain others from these things by their admonishment.

Ninth Lesson.

[77r.] And some there be who, as if enriched with two talents, comprehend both understanding and work : they understand the details of inward things, and outwardly they work wonders. Whenever they preach to others both by understanding and by works : they return as it were a twofold gain of the trade. Now it is good that by some five and by others two in profit are brought back in return, because when preaching is bestowed by whichever servant : as it were double the talents are received. But he that had received the one talent : going his way digged into the earth : and hid his lord's money. To hide a talent in the earth is to be involved in accepting the nature of worldly affairs : not to seek for spiritual profit, never to raise the heart from earthly thoughts. There are some which receive the gift of understanding : but nevertheless only have a taste for things of the body. Of such it is said by the prophet, They are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge. But the Lord who assigned the talents, returneth to demand an account, because he who now faithfully bestoweth spiritual gifts : at the judgement seeketh out merits searchingly. Let each one consider what he hath received : and weigh what profit he will report according to the portion.

Likewise other Lessons of one Confessor and Bishop.

*Lesson j. (Gregory On the Gospels, Homily ix.)*³⁹

[77v.] THE servant⁴⁰ therefore who rendereth two talents, is praised by the lord : and is led also to his eternal reward, seeing that by the voice of the lord is said to him, Well done, good and faithful servant, because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will place thee over many things : enter thou into the joy of thy lord. Of course as many as are the good deeds of the present life : they appear few in comparison with the eternal rewards. But then the faithful servant is placed over many things, when, all the troubles of corruption being overcome, he glorieth in the eternal joy of that heavenly home. Then he is admitted in perfect joy to his Lord, when he is taken up into that eternal homeland and also is joined with the company of the angels, in such inner joy in the gift : that there is no longer any external sorrow of corruption.

Second Lesson.

BUT the servant which was unwilling to work with the <one> talent : returned to his lord with words of excuse saying, Lord, I knew that thou art a hard man, thou reapest where thou hast not sown, and gatherest where thou hast not strewed. And being afraid I went and hid thy talent in the earth : behold here thou hast that which is thine. It should be noted, however, that the unprofitable servant calleth his lord hard : who yet neglecteth to serve. And he saith that he was afraid to expend the talent for gain : who ought only to have been afraid to return it to the lord without gain. Indeed there are many in the holy church who have a likeness to that servant, who fear to attempt a better way of life : and yet are not terrified to rest in idleness of body. And when they reflect on their sinfulness, they fear to lay hold of holy ways : but fear not to remain in their wickedness.

Lesson iiij.

Peter while yet in weakness serveth as a good example : who when he saw the miracle of the fishes said, Depart from me, O Lord, for I am a sinful man. Indeed if thou consider thyself a sinner : it is right that thou drive not the Lord away from thee. For those who on that account are unwilling to seize the citadel of better habits and upright life because they observe themselves to be infirm, and confess themselves sinners, and drive away the Lord :

also flee him in whom they ought to have been sanctified. And in turmoil they both have no resolve when dying and they fear life. Whence to this servant at once he answered, Wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sow not, and gather where I have not strewed : thou oughtest therefore to have committed my money to the bankers, and at my coming I should have received my own with usury.

Lesson iiij.

THE servant is trapped by his own word, when the lord saith, I reap where I sow not, and gather where I have not strewed. And if openly he saith, If according to thy opinion, I seek for that which I have not given : how much more will I expect from thee of what I gave for trade ? To be sure, to give money to moneylenders is, to give knowledge of preaching to them : which thereby are able to exercise words and works. But as you observe our peril if we hold the Lord's money : so, dearly beloved, carefully consider yours : because what ye hear is demanded by us with interest. With interest, of course, money not given is taken back besides. When indeed this is returned which hath been received : that also is added besides which was not received.

Lesson v.

Consider, dearly beloved brethren, what you pay back on receiving these words, this money with interest, and undertake that from the same which you have heard, likewise you should strive to understand other which you have not heard : where connecting between one thing and another, you also learn other things from yourselves, which you have not yet learned from the mouth of the preacher. But let us hear the sentence which he imposeth on the lazy servant. Take ye away the talent from him : and give it to him that hath ten talents. It would seem most suitable, if the one talent taken from the wicked servant : were given rather to him which received two talents than to him which received five. It should have been given indeed to him who had less : rather than to him who had more. But as I said above, by the five talents is evidently indicated the five senses, that is knowledge of externals : by the two, however, are portrayed understanding and works. Therefore the one who received two had more than he who had five, because he who with the five talents was found worthy of the management of externals : was still devoid of interior knowledge. Thus the one talent which I have asserted to signify understanding was bound to be given to him : who well attended to the externals that he had received.

This we see daily in the holy church, for most, while they attend well to the externals which they have received, are also led by additional grace to mystical understanding : so that they which attend faithfully to externals, may also be strong in inner understanding. Furthermore a general thought is immediately added where it is said, For to every one that hath shall be given, and he shall abound : but from him that hath not, that also which he seemeth to have shall be taken away. Inasmuch as to the one who hath shall be given and he shall abound, for whosoever hath love : also gaineth other gifts. But whosoever hath not love : shall lose even those gifts that he appeared to have gained. Hence it is necessary, my most beloved brethren : that in all that you do ye be vigilant in the care of love. Moreover true love is : both to love thy friend in God, and also to love thy enemy on account of God. As much as whosoever hath not this : loseth every good that he hath. He is deprived of the talent which he had received and according to the sentence of the Lord is cast into exterior darkness. Through punishment he indeed falleth into exterior darkness : who through his offense hath voluntarily fallen into exterior darkness by his own sin. He will there suffer the darkness of retribution : who here hath freely borne the darkness of pleasure.

¶ [The Gospel]⁴¹ According to Matthew xxiiij. (42).

AT that time. Jesus said to his disciples, Watch, because ye know not what hour your Lord will come. And that which followeth.

A Homily of the Venerable Bede, Priest.

IN this parable⁴² the Lord sheweth that one ought always to be looking for his coming. For the master of the house is our soul : who in the manner of a master of the house ruleth and maintaineth the body and all the functions of the body. The thief, however, is death coming unexpectedly. The thief breaketh into the house : when death suddenly and unexpectedly bringeth about an unprepared passing. If the master of the house had known of the thief's coming, he indeed would have watched : and not allowed his house to be broken into. For if our soul were zealously on the lookout for the day of our death : without doubt it would put aside its lethargy and in all ways be watchful. But thou, O Lord.

Lesson viij.

THE faithful and wise servant : is understood to be the chorus of apostles and martyrs and those which follow their example. Rightly is the order of the chorus of apostles called a faithful and wise servant. For one is faithful who distributeth his Lord's possessions with fidelity and devotion. Wise is he who in distributing them discerneth the capacity of each person. Who is put in this position not for no <reason>, but with difficulty and rarely. And rarely indeed is one found : who would hand out his lord's possessions to his servants worthily and with discretion. Whom his lord setteth over his family, that is over the Church :

which he with His blood bought back from the enemy.

Lesson ix.

HE made the faithful servant ruler over his household, namely the order of preachers, so that he might distribute in season a measure of wheat : that is, the grain of the Word of God, to each one according to his capacity. Blessed is that servant, whom when his lord shall come he shall find so doing. Amen I say to you, he shall place him over all his goods. This shall be the reward of a faithful servant, namely that when the Lord cometh he will be made ruler over all the goods of the heavenly homeland : not that he alone shall have dominion in glory : but he especially shall appear to be a master in glory, which stood forth as his Lord's faithful steward. For whoever hath laboured more fully : to the same shall be given a fuller reward.

¶ On the Birthday of one Confessor and Abbot.

[Lesson one.

TO have mentioned⁴⁴ something to the praise of our holy and most blessed father N. whose feast we celebrate this day, is to have snatched⁴⁵ <it> away, seeing that indeed the grace of his virtues is not to be expounded in words : but to be proven by works.
For when the scripture saith, The glory of a father is a wise son, how great are the glories of this one which, rejoicing in the wisdom and devotion of so many sons, in Christ

Jesus, by the gospel, himself begot us.
Whatsoever therefore is able to be of virtue and grace in this holy people, flowed forth from this as if from a certain fountain of purity, the clearest of all streams. For because he excelled in the strength of chastity and other virtues, because he gloried in the constraints of abstinence, because he was endowed with the charms of gentleness, he called forth the love of all citizens for God.⁴⁶

Lesson two.

Well and fittingly on this day, wherein blessed N. our father whose passing to paradise rendereth us joyful, shall we sing the verse of the psalm, The just shall be in everlasting remembrance. For he is deservedly recollected in the memory of men : who passed over to the joy of angels. The divine word saith, Praise not a man in his lifetime. As if it might say, Praise <him> after death : magnify <him> after <his> consummation. For for a twofold reason it is more expedient for men to give praise in memory than in life, that at that time you may most powerfully extol the merits of sanctity : when neither adulation harmeth praising, nor elation incite glorification. Praise therefore after the danger, proclaim securely. Praise the strength of a commander : but when he hath been led to the triumph.

Lesson three.

BUt who while living can be praised safely and without trepidation : who both remembereth that he hath something from the past which he regretteth, and seeth something awaiting him in the future which he feareth ? Who, to be sure placed in this body, ought to claim to himself anything according to merits, by which the infestation of demons, as if a multitude of robbers, again besiegeth, for whom unseen deceivers spread traps on all [roads]⁴⁷ to frighten by the deaths of innumerable souls ? We are sailing through this great and spacious sea : in which there are creeping things without number, creatures little and great, that is, diverse kinds of enemies, which, weighed according to the degree of our strength in the agony of the sea of this world, wrestle with us, being greatly feared by us : lest either a storm of tempest blow away our ship, or waves engulf, or a cruel pirate carry off as eternal plunder. Against these manifold evils of the world : let us resist with chastened and chaste deeds. But thou.

Lesson four.

NOw let us magnify the merits of the blessed father N. now securely placed in safety, who, manfully holding the helm of faith, hath now settled in a position of tranquility with the anchor of hope : and hath now moored the ship full of heavenly riches and eternal goods on the desired shore. Who against all adversaries tirelessly held the shield of the fear of God at length : until he arrived at victory. For what was the course of that whole life : except one contest with the watchful enemy ?

With how many blind persons here, erring from the way of truth and now hanging over the abyss from the height of a cliff, restored he the sight they had lost : and repaired he that vision by which Christ might be seen ? Into how many ears of the heart condemned by the hardness of unbelief : did he pour in the gift of hearing to be able to perceive the voice of heavenly commands : that with God calling them to mercy they might respond with obedience ? But thou.

Lesson v.

How many inwardly wounded did he cure with the art of angelic speech and the strength of prayers ? How many, through long neglect having been undone by the stain of sin, and certain <ones> having been covered with the contagion of leprosy : hath he cleansed by expiating through chastisements and exhortations with God working within him ? How many souls, already dead while living in the body : and overwhelmed and buried by a mass of sins, calling to amendment as if to the light did he resucitate, so that the admirable imitator of his Lord, might on the contrary by so great a death now mortify those souls dead to God through sin. This man on another side closed through his health-bringing appearance those things which he had opened : lest by them an object of desire alien to them might appear, lest guilt transmit the stain of the outer man to the inner, lest obscurities should enter into the heart on the path of light, lest also in anyone that prophetic malediction⁴⁸ might be fulfilled, Death, it saith, hath entered through your windows. For the ministries of the ears and the eyes are proven to be windows for souls.

Lesson vj.

For when we open <our> hearing to those speaking evil and wicked things and culpably disparaging, and which are urging things contrary to God : death entereth through our windows, the dread⁴⁹ of deadly night breaketh forth : through which the sun of justice ought to have entered. When these windows of sin are open, the door of salvation and life and the gates of paradise are shut. This blessed man N. hath closed these windows : with many bars of divine fear. From how many hearts, whom unseemly iniquity and impiety possessed, did he put extravagance to flight, cast out anger, extinguish envy, and as if having been perturbed by barbarous strangers from an ancient house, by recalling there faith, chastity, justice, mercy, he introduced peaceful inhabitants : through which Christ, the head of all good things, might enter into the dwelling of the mind. And having applied the medicine of penitence, as if he revived <someone> stinking for four days with a roar of rebukes : and with correction being received, having plucked from amid the jaws of death, he restored <him> with a timely resurrection. And so accomplishing these and many such things, which a poor word is unable to expound and set forth for us as is fitting, your affection may better declare them to us : with the highest degree of alacrity and justice he was a husbandman and custodian of souls, cutting back carnal desires, restraining anger, rooting out wickednesses.]⁵⁰

All Feasts of one Confessor and Abbot have proper Lessons as appear at those same Feasts. Nevertheless when the Feast of Saint Giles [kal. Sept.]⁵¹ falls on a Sunday let it be deferred until the morrow : and then is read the following Gospel.

According to Luke. xj. (33).

AT that time, Jesus said unto his disciples, No man lighteth a candle, and putteth it in a hidden place, nor under a bushel ; but upon a candlestick, that they that come in, may see the light. And that which followeth.

*A Homily of the Venerable Bede, Priest.
(On the Gospel of Luke, Chap. 50.)⁵²*

THE Lord is here speaking about himself, shewing that although he had said above that no sign would be given to this wicked generation except the sign of the prophet Jonah :

yet by no means would the brightness of his light be hidden from the faithful. He himself indeed lit a candle when he filled the vessel of our human nature with the flame of his divinity. He certainly did not want to hide this candle from believers, nor put it under a bushel, that is, confine it under the measure of the Law or restrict it to the limits of the Jewish people alone. But he put it upon a candlestick, as he saith, so that those who enter may see the light.

Lesson viij.

THE candlestick refereth to the Church. He placed the candle on her, for he imprinted on our foreheads faith in his incarnation, so that those who faithfully enter the Church might be able to gaze openly upon the light of truth. By this statement he also condemneth the leaders of the Jews, who, since they [78v.] were seeking signs externally, were not willing to enter the open door of light by believing. Finally, he ordered them not only to be mindful of their works, but also to purify and chastise their thoughts and even the very intentions of their hearts. For there followeth : The light of thy body is thy eye. By the body the Lord meaneth works, which are openly evident to everyone, but by the eye he meaneth the very intention of the mind with which these works are done, and concerning their merit, these same works are determined by their intention to be works of light or works of darkness, as he subsequently explaineth, saying, If thy eye be single, thy whole body will be lightsome : but if it be evil, thy body also will be darksome.

IF, he saith, thou strivest with a right and pure intention to do what thou canst, certainly what thou dost will be works of light, even if before men they may seem to have some element of imperfection : for To them that love God, all things work together unto good, to such as, according to his purpose, are called to be saints. If, however, a preceding intention be perverse, every work that followeth from it is evil, even though it may seem to be right. Take heed therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness. That is, consider with careful discretion lest the very intention of thy heart, which is the light of thy soul, should be blackened by the darkness of sins, in accordance with what is commanded elsewhere : With all watchfulness keep thy heart, because life issueth out from it. If then thy whole body be lightsome, having no part of darkness, the whole shall be lightsome, and as a bright lamp shall enlighten thee. Our whole body referreth to all our works, for the Apostle also calleth certain works which he reproveth our members, and he commandeth that they be mortified when he saith, Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth : fornication, uncleanness, lust, and other things of the sort.

[Likewise other Lessons of any Confessor.]

First Lesson.

Brethren, obeying Christ, let him sell what he possesseth and give alms, that he may lift his heart from earth to heaven, and tread upon covetousness : that he may hasten to the summit of perfection with all eagerness of mind, that he may not be troubled with the things of the world : but with those that are of God, so that he may have the world crucified for him, that he may be altogether poor in the world :

and rich in Christ.

Lesson ij.

Who knoweth not the greatness of this good ? We see however that there is in every one the power of selling his goods : every one hath his proper gift from God, one after this manner. Behold, few are able to accomplish this great good : many cannot. Can it be that this perfection is given to a few ? for this reason those are obliged to be the worst : as many as are not yet are able to be perfected in goodness.

Lesson iij.

Can it be that a Christian, on that account, should adhere to the errors of rapacity, because he is perhaps not yet able to distribute all his property to the poor ? Or, therefore, should he covet the things of another, because he cannot yet at all despise his own ? God forbid this.

For the Apostle truly saith : Because neither covetous, nor extortioners shall possess the kingdom of God.

Lesson iiij.

And it is manifest that every one who shall be alienated from the kingdom of God : shall be condemned in eternal fire with the Devil and his angels. Therefore, dearly beloved, if all are able to fulfill what the Lord said, Sell what you possess : yet that which he added, saying, Give alms, is possible to all : if good will is present : it is easy for all :

if no harsh greed is present, it is wholesome for all if charity be fervent. Therefore it ought to be common to all : so that eternal happiness may be granted to all.

Fifth Lesson.

Whoever receiveth so great a power from the Lord, that he despiseth all things which are in the world for the love of the heavenly kingdom : selleth all that he hath to expend on the needy. But he who doth not yet prove to be of such great virtue : of those things which he hath, let him give alms insofar as he is able. As much as good will worketh : so much do means suffice. The perfect may possess the first place of virtue : let the imperfect at least attain to the second <place>. As he is made gloriously worthy, so let him be plentifully worthy of praise. Indeed let the perfect be the most ardent lover of holy poverty : let the imperfect be the most devoted comforter of the holy poor.

Sixth Lesson.

Let him be thought the patron of the poor before God : who rejoiceth to have them as sharers of virtue. Let him be such as may sit with God judging : let him be such as may attend on the right hand giving judgement. Let him be such as may possess everlasting dwellings of life in perpetuity : let him be such whom he may receive. The Lord admonisheth us, saying, Make unto you friends of the mammon of iniquity : who may receive you into everlasting dwellings.

Gospel according to Mark. xiiij. 33.

Seventh Lesson.

T that time, Jesus said to his disciples, Take ye heed, watch and pray. For ye know not when the time is. And that which followeth.

A Homily from the Commentary of the Venerable Bede, Priest.

The Lord warned his disciples to watch and to pray and to be cautious : but yet he would not shew them the time of the last judgment, because it profited them more to not know this than to know : that the suspicious, being ready, always keep watch. Well, indeed, he watcheth, who sleepeth from the vain joys of the world : and watcheth over the divine commandments. For he profitably⁵³ prayeth : which presenteth himself such that he may prevail to gain : that which he asketh in <his> prayers. For ye know not when the time is. As if he had said, Just as ye have not known the day of your coming into the world : so ye know not the day of your departure from the world.

Eighth Lesson.

FOr that day shall come as a thief in the night. But the coming of a thief in most places of the holy scriptures, is an unexpected death : who <with> the lord sleeping then breaketh into the house, where he compelleth the man to depart from <his> body with a sudden passing. Even as a man who going into a far country, left his house : and gave authority to his servants over every work : and commanded the porter to watch. This man is understood to be Christ, who, returning to the Father after conquering death, left the church bodily : which however with the presence of his divinity he never left destitute, abiding in her : as he himself said, All days, even to the consummation of the world. The lord therefore gave his servants authority over every work, that is, He gave his faithful the means to serve well.

Ninth Lesson.

HE also commanded the porter that he watch : because He entrusteth the order of pastors for rightly exercising care over their flocks. Then the porter, that is each one of the faithful, openeth his door to his Christ when he diligently accepteth his words in his heart : and then he likewise prayeth manfully : when he contendeth with all zeal, that he may please him to whom he hath engaged himself. Hence therefore the Lord hath added, saying, At even, or at midnight, or at the cockrowing, or in the morning. The varieties of these hours are able to signify wordly obstacles : in which <they> are occupied which are pursuing more their own than divine <ends>. For even : I judge to be able to signify the failing of human life, midnight : the profundity of obscure vices, cockcrow : the voices of proclamations : the morning likewise the day of judgment. For such is the conclusion to this Gospel, And what I say to you : I say to all, Watch. We instruct all to watch : that through the vigil we may obtain a reward from Christ.]⁵⁴

 Lessed are those servants, cometh, shall find watching.

He watcheth : who keepeth his mind's eyes open to the appearance of the true light. He watcheth : who keepeth what he believeth in his works. He watcheth : who driveth from himself the darkness of torpor and negligence. Indeed, hence Paul saith : Awake, ye just, and sin not.

Hence again he saith : It is now the hour for us to rise from sleep. But let us hear what the Lord coming furnisheth for vigilant servants : Amen I say to you, that he will gird himself, and make them sit down to meat, and passing will minister unto them. He will gird himself : that is he shall prepare a reward. He shall make them to sit down : that is, to be

OR us to sit down : is to be at peace in the eternal kingdom. Hence again the Lord saith, They shall come and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob. The Lord, however, shall minister, because he satisfieth us by the illumination of his light. To be sure the passing of the Lord is : when he returneth from the final judgement to <his> kingdom. Or at all events after judgement the Lord passeth over us, because we are raised from appearance of human nature into the contemplation of his divinity. And his passing is, that we are led to the vision of his brightness, when him whom we discern in his humanity at the judgement : we likewise behold in divinity after the judgement. The Lord coming in the form of a servant at the judgement appeareth to all : for it is written, They shall look on him whom they pierced. But while the condemned fall down into punishment, the just are led into the brightness of his glory, as it is written, The wicked is taken away : that he shall not see the glory of God.

Lesson iij.

UT what if the servants are negligent in the first watch ? Of course the first watch is the guard of the first years. But thus neither should <we> despair : nor cease from good works. For the Lord telling of the persistence of his patience subjoineth, And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants. The first watch is the first years : that is childhood. The second is young manhood or youth : [79v.] which are attested by the authority of sacred speech to be one, Rejoice O young man, in thy youth. Moreover the third is taken <to be> old age. Who therefore was unwilling to keep awake in the first watch : let him indeed take care for the second. That he who had neglected to be turned from his evil ways during childhood, may at least keep watch over <his> way of life in the time of youth. And he who was unwilling to keep awake in the second watch : may not lose the remedy of the third watch. So that he who in youth watcheth not over the way of life : may at least come to his senses in old age.

Lesson iiij.

Consider, dearly beloved brethren : how God's love hath confined our obstinacy. There is now no man who findeth an excuse. God is despised and he waiteth : he seeth himself rejected and he calleth back.
He observeth the injury of his rejection : and yet as often as there is turning back again he promiseth a gift. But let no one neglect this forbearance of his, for he shall extend strict justice in judgement : by as long as he hath demanded patience before the judgement. For this reason Paul saith, Knowest thou not, that the benignity of God leadeth thee to penance ? But according to thy hardness and impenitent heart, thou treasurest up to thyself wrath, against the day of wrath, and revelation of the just judgment of God.

Lesson v.

THE Psalmist saith, God is a just judge, strong and patient. To be sure, in mentioning patient he firstly said just, so that thou wouldst know that he who seeth thee long since patiently bear the sins of transgressors : shall indeed at some time judge severely. Hence by a certain wise man is said, The most High is a patient rewarder. Of course he is said to be patient in repaying : because the sins of men are both endured and repaid. For those whom he endureth for a long time that they may be converted : he harshly condemneth when they are not converted. However to cast out sloth from our minds, even external losses are led into the midst by a parable : that by this the mind may be aroused to its own protection. For it is said, But this know ye, that if the householder did know at what hour the thief would come, he would surely watch, and would not suffer his house to be broken open. And after this comparison he subjoineth a word of exhortation : Be you then also ready : for at what hour you think not, the Son of Man will come.

Lesson vj.

Owever, the goodman not	open the house : for while the spirit knowing, the thief breaketh	sleepeth during his watch, death suddenly coming breaketh in to the dwelling of our flesh. And he who shall come upon the lord of the house sleeping killeth him : because he doth forsee little of losses to come, death carrieth off this <one> unawares to punishment. But if he were watching he would resist the thief, because the coming of the Judge who carrieth off the soul in secret, guarding against the same should go out to meet him by repenting : lest he should perish impenitent. However the Lord willed that our final hour should be unknown to us : that it should always be uncertain. That while we are not able to forsee it, we may prepare for it without ceasing. Therefore, my brethren, in the condition of your mortality fix the eyes of your minds : prepare for the coming Judge daily with weeping and mourning. Seeing that certain death awaiteth all : be unwilling to ponder the uncertain providence of temporal life. Be ye not burdened with the care of earthly things. However much indeed ye are encircled by chains of gold and silver, however much the body is dressed in precious garments : what else is it but a body ? Do not therefore attend to what you have : but to what you are. But thou.

AT that time, Jesus said unto his disciples, Let your loins be girt, and lamps burning in your hands. And that which followeth.

A Homily of Blessed Gregory, Pope.

(On the Gospels, Homily xij.)⁸¹

THE holy Gospel, dearly beloved brethren, hath been clearly read to us : but lest anything should perhaps seem too obscure, let us hasten through it with brevity : such that those who are unaware shall have learned, and also those which understand shall not be wearied. Because in men lust is in the loins, in women in the navel : the Lord testifieth, what is told concerning the Devil to blessed Job saying, His strength is in his loins, and his force in the navel of his belly. Therefore lust is indicated of the pincipal sex, by the name loins : where the Lord saith, Let your loins be girt. Now we gird the loins : when we confine the lust of the flesh by continence. But forasmuch as it suffieth not to take away the evil, unless one should also desire to labour over good works : immediately is added, And lamps burning in your hands. We hold lights burning in our hands : when through good works by light we show examples to our neighbour.

Lesson viij.

ET your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven. Two things then are commanded, to gird our loins, and to hold lamps : that there be both the cleanliness of chastity in the body, and the light of truth in works. Indeed, one without the other is by no means able to please our Redeemer : whether he that doeth good yet ceaseth not from the defilement of lust, or he that excelleth in chastity yet exerciseth not himself in good works. Neither therefore is chastity notable without good works : nor are good works anything without chastity. But if both are done : it remaineth that whoever it be, he should look with hope to the heavenly homeland, and by no means should he restrain himself from the vices of this world merely for honour. For if a certain good person should enter upon something for honesty, nevertheless neither ought that intention to remain, nor to seek glory in the present world by good works : but he should prepare with all hope for the coming of his Redeemer.

AND ye yourselves like to men who wait for their lord, when he shall return from the wedding. To the wedding of course the Lord departed, because rising again from the dead he ascended into heaven : and the new man joined unto himself a multitude of heavenly angels. Who thence returneth : and now is made known to us through judgement. Now rightly of the expecting servants is added, That when he cometh and knocketh, they may open to him immediately. The Lord by all means cometh : when he hasteneth to judgement. He knocketh however :

when even now by the troubles of sickness, he indicateth death to be nigh. To him we open immediately : if we receive him with love. Indeed he who is unwilling to open to the Judge when he knocketh, who feareth to take leave of the body : and to see him whom he remembereth to have despised, feareth judgement. But he who is secure in his hope and works : immediately openeth to the knocking, because he sustaineth a favourable judgement. And when he shall discern that the hour of death is at hand : he shall be joyful of a glorious reward.
