First Lesson. Jer. xj. (i.–5.)14

HE word that came from the Lord to Jeremias, saying : Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou shalt say to them : Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel : Cursed is the man that shall not hearken to the words of this covenant, which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying : Hear ye my voice, and do all things that I command you : and you shall be my people, and I will be your God : that I may accomplish the oath which I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. Thus saith.

Second Lesson. (Jer. xi. 5.-8.)

And I answered and said: Amen, O Lord. And the Lord said to me: Proclaim aloud all these words in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying: Hear ye the words of the covenant, and do them: for protesting I conjured your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt even to this day: rising early I conjured them, and said: Hearken ye to my voice: and they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear: but walked every one in the perverseness of his own wicked heart: and I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not. Thus saith.

Third Lesson. (Jer. xj. 9.-13.)

And the Lord said to me: A conspiracy is found among the men of Juda, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem. They are returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, who refused to hear my words: so these likewise have gone after strange gods, to serve them: the house of Israel, and the house of Juda have made void my covenant, which I made with their fathers. Wherefore thus saith the Lord: Behold I will bring in evils upon them, which they shall not be able to escape: and they shall cry to me, and I will not hearken to them. And the cities of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods to whom they offer sacrifice, and they shall not save them in the time of their affliction. For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Juda: and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem thou hast set up altars of confusion, altars to offer sacrifice to Baalim.

Lesson iiiij.

of the twenty-first psalm which hath been read in its turn: we ought first diligently to consider what it containeth in the superscription: that having understood its beginning we may the more easily grasp its meaning, and with the heading having been revealed the <other> parts may be rightly inferred. For it is inscribed thus, Unto the end, for the beginning of the morning, a psalm for David himself. Unless I be mistaken, the beginning of the morning always precedeth the rising of the sun: and before the gleaming brilliance of rays illuminateth the world: dawn putteth an end to the darkness of night, and gradually disperseth the gloom of blindness: a certain appearance and light is poured out upon all things. And while the world hath lain in confusion as if under a wall of darkness: with the arrival of dawn a divers variety of appearances is distinguished. That is, where previously all things had been blind: the eyes of all are renewed. For while night in a certain way stealeth the eyes of the world: dawn restoreth. And thus we enjoy beforehand the beginning of the dawn: that afterward we may the more gloriously receive the brilliance of the sun. But seeing that as the Apostle saith, the law is spiritual: and spiritual things are to be compared with spiritual things: this is, I think, to be designated Sun of Justice, that is, Christ the Lord, who unto us, being sunk in the darkness of ignorance and the blindness of sins: hath poured out the light of his heavenly doctrine. And he hath inserted the eyes of the heart which we had not, and like so many rays hath sent forth his apostles: who might deliver us from the night of most disgraceful transgression, and with the darkness of sins by degrees dissolved in us, by the rising of the dawn to accustom us, that we being perfected should be able to bear more easily the heat of the sun. That is, firstly they would instruct us in simpler precepts: by which we might be rendered more capable of heavenly mysteries. And thus by the dawn of this Sun of Justice all the darkness of sins is destroyed: as the prophet himself saith in the person of the Lord, In the morning I put to death all the wicked of the land. That is, when the Sun of Justice dawneth in us, who are the dwelling place of the Lord: every unjust thought is overthrown. [117r.] But thou.

Insurrexerunt in me. AS:202; 1519:189r; 1531:117r. 18

Icked men * have ris-en up a-gainst me, and without mer-cy have sought to kill me:

and spared not to spit in my face: and their spears have wounded me: and all my bones are shaken.

†But as for me, I counted myself as one that was dead upon the earth. And they gave me gall for my food: and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink. †But.

Fifth Lesson.

Now the whole of this psalm is arranged according to the person of the Lord the Saviour: granted that more things are set down about him in the New Testament. Thus it saith, O God my God, look upon me: and so forth. Why doth it plead the cause of the man that was assumed: as it would appear in a certain way to ask, saying, God of all, who art my God: why hast thou forsaken me? For I myself am aware of nothing. For according to the prophet he knew not sin: nor was there any deceit in his mouth. For he saith these things, that he might show that He was forsaken on account of us of whose sins He bore:
and that seeing we might learn to die for Him who is both holy and just, seeing that He died for our sin. Finally in his passion he used this expression as we read in the Gospel: Eli, Eli, lamma sabacthani? that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? He used, I say, this expression: that what the prophecy had announced, would be proven by the outcome. And because what followeth is mostly evident: let us examine the verse in which it saith, But I am a worm, and no man. Why doth the Lord of every creature wish to be compared to a worm? We are indeed able to impute this humility (which is the greatest virtue of the saints) firstly as Moses professeth himself an irrational animal before God, and David often calleth himself a flea. But I think rather this ought to be accepted: seeing that a worm is procreated with no admixture of a foreign body from without, but from the pure earth alone: thus is it compared to the Lord, since the Saviour himself is begotten from the chaste Mary alone.

We also read in the books of Moses of worms produced from manna. The comparison is deservedly clear and just. If indeed the worm is brought forth from manna: and the Lord Christ is begotten of a virgin, why should I not rather have said that Mary herself is manna: for she is subtle, splendid, sweet, and a virgin. Who, just as if coming from heaven: poured forth to all the peoples of the churches food sweeter than honey. Whoever shall neglect to eat and to feed upon it: shall not be able to have life in himself, as the Lord himself saith, Except one shall eat my flesh, and drink my blood: he shall not have life in him. But rather that very food shall be turned into judgment unto him: as the Apostle saith, He that eateth and drinketh unworthily: eateth and drinketh judgment to himself. Which was prophesied subtly to the children of Israel in the Old Testament. For to those acting against divine precepts, worms were produced: that is, avengers and punishers of stubbornness, which similitude sheweth Christ the Lord. Whom he that hath neglected to consume pleasant food and sweet drink: must suffer to judge, as he himself saith, For neither doth the Father judge any man, but hath given all judgment to the Son. Moreover insofar as it saith, They parted my garments among them: and upon my vesture they cast lots: we learn that this was done in the Gospel, insofar as the four soldiers which crucified the Saviour divided his garments among themselves in four parts. But for the garment which was not sewn together, but was woven from the top: they took it by lot. Let us consider, then, what these garments are: which the soldiers, and if you will, what the coat. I think that the garments are the prophecies, or the lessons of the heavenly Scriptures: by which the sacrament of Christ the Lord was announced. Which prophecies one singing, and another announcing everywhere, the adversaries of the Saviour, that is the wicked heretics which, just as the soldiers, daily lay impious hands upon him: by so doing wilfully divide among themselves, and the garments of the one body distribute through divers members: and despoiling the Lord, clothe in their own false doctrines. Moreover his coat which was not sewn: we can allow <to be> his heavenly wisdom, seeing that it was woven from above. For our wisdom which is human, is sewn together. For it is sewn together when we give children to studies, deliver them to grammarians, instruct them by philosophers: that the wisdom which was not in them might be acquired. But the wisdom of the Lord is not sewn: it is not acquired. For he did not learn from a master: as the Jews themselves say, How doth this man know letters, having never learned? And he himself saith, My doctrine is not mine: but his that sent me. This is what he saith of that woven from above. In which garment or in all which garments the catholic Church hath ever been clothed: as the prophet saith, The queen stood on thy right hand, in gilded clothing.

Homily of the Venerable Bede, Priest. (24. Book 1. of Homilies)$^{20}$

THE Mediator of God and men, the man Christ Jesus, who that he should suffer for the salvation of the human race had come down from heaven to earth, the hour of <his> passion drawing near, willed to draw near to the place of <his> passion: that by this it might indeed be made clear, that he would suffer not reluctantly but of his own will. He willed to come on an ass and to be called by the crowd king, and also to be praised, that instructed even by this everyone might acknowledge him to be the Christ whom afore time the promised prophecy had designated was the one to come thusly. He willed to come five days before the pasch, as we have learned from the Gospel of John, that by this too he might shew himself to be the spotless lamb: which would take away the sins of the world. But thou.

Lesson viiij.

Of course the paschal lamb by whose immolation the people of Israel were delivered from Egyptian slavery: had been ordered to be selected five days before the pasch, that is on the tenth <day> of the month, and immolated on the fourteenth <day> of the month at evening: signifying him which was to redeem us by his blood, five days before the pasch, that is this day, escorted with great joy and praise of the people preceding and following, he came into the temple of God, and was there teaching daily. Who finally after the fifth day was ended, having observed thus far the completion of the sacraments of the old pasch: also delivered the new sacraments to be observed thereafter to the disciples. Having gone out to mount Olivet <he> was seized by the Jews: and in the morning was crucified. On that very day he redeemed us from the domination of the Devil: in which the ancient people of the Hebrews by the immolation of a lamb, had cast aside the yoke of Egyptian slavery. But thou.

Lesson ix.

Herefore the Lord, the counterpart of the paschal lamb, five days before he began to suffer, approached the place of <his> passion: that he might make known that he was that one, concerning which Isaiah had predicted, He shall be led as a sheep to the slaughter, and shall be dumb as a lamb before his shearer, and he shall not open his mouth. And a little above, But he was wounded for our iniquities: and by his bruises we are healed. But the hearts of envious leaders: preferred rather to persecute than to believe him in everything which he providentially carried out. And many wretched people strove more to hand over to death the Author of life: than by him to be brought to life. To be sure, let us, avoiding the blindness of those faithless <ones>, rather follow the example <of those> which faithfully praised the Lord: and let us investigate his mystical path with mystical interpretation, as is proper. The ass and colt sitting upon which he came to Jerusalem, denote <those> of simple hearts among each of the people, namely the Jews and the Gentiles, whom governing and restraining from harmful freedom by his authority: he leadeth to the vision of heavenly peace. Indeed Jerusalem is interpreted, Vision of peace. But thou.

First Lesson. Jer. xj. (14-17.)

Herefore, do not thou pray for this people, and do not take up praise and prayer for them: for I will not hear them in the time of their cry to me, in the time of their affliction. What is the meaning that my beloved hath wrought much wickedness in my house? shall the holy flesh take away from thee thy crimes, in which thou hast boasted? The Lord called thy name, a plentiful olive tree, fair, fruitful, and beautiful: at the noise of a word, a great fire was kindled in it and the branches thereof are burnt. And the Lord of hosts that planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee: for the evils of the house of Israel, and the house of Juda, which they have done to [118v.] themselves, to provoke me, offering sacrifice to Baalim. Thus saith the Lord.

V. Judge me, O Lord, according to my justice: and according to my innocence in me. †O Lord.

Lesson iij. (Jer. xij. 18–23.)

But thou, O Lord, hast shewn me, and I have known: then thou shewedst me their doings. And I was as a meek lamb, that is carried to be a victim: and I knew not that they had devised counsels against me, saying: Let us put wood on his bread, and cut him off from the land of the living, and let his name be remembered no more. But thou, O Lord of Sabaoth, who judgest justly, and triest the reins and hearts, let me see thy revenge on them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. Therefore thus saith the Lord to the men of Anathoth, who seek thy life, and say: Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of the Lord, and thou shalt not die in our hands. Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will visit upon them: and their young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall die by famine. And there shall be no remains of them. Thus saith.

V. They have spoken a-gainst me with de-ceitful tongues :
and they have compassed me a-bout with words of ha-tred. †Help me.

Third Lesson. (Jer. xj. 23-xij. 6.)

For I will bring in evil upon the men of Anathoth, the year of their visitation. Thou indeed, O Lord, art just, if I plead with thee, but yet I will speak what is just to thee : Why doth the way of the wicked prosper : why is it well with all them that transgress, and do wickedly ? Thou hast planted them, and they have taken root : they prosper and bring forth fruit : thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins. And thou, O Lord, hast known me, thou hast seen me, and proved my heart with thee : gather them together as sheep for a sacrifice, and prepare them for the day of slaughter. How long shall the land mourn, and the herb of every field wither for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? The beasts and the birds are consumed: because they have said: He shall not see our last end. If thou hast wearied with running with footmen, how canst thou contend with horses? and if thou hast been secure in a land of peace, what wilt thou do in the swelling of the Jordan? For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, even they have fought against thee. Thus saith the Lord.

Lesson j. Jer. xij. (6–9.)

And they have cried after thee with full voice: believe them not when they speak good things to thee. I have forsaken my house, I have left my inheritance: I have given my dear soul into the land of her enemies. My inheritance is become to me as a lion in the wood: it hath cried out against me, therefore have I hated it. Is my inheritance to me as a speckled bird? Is it as a bird dyed throughout? come ye, assemble yourselves, all the beasts of the earth, make haste to devour. Thus saith.

R. Save me, O God. [Look for it on Palm Sunday.] 41 1230.

Lesson ii. (Jer. xij. 10–14.)

Any pastors have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden my portion under foot: they have changed my delightful portion into a desolate wilderness. They have laid it waste, and it hath mourned for me. With desolation is all the land made desolate; because there is none that considereth in the heart. The spoilers are come upon all the ways of the wilderness, for the sword of the Lord shall devour from one end of the land to the other end thereof: there is no peace for all flesh. They have sown wheat, and reaped thorns: they have received an inheritance, and it shall not profit them: you shall be ashamed of your fruits, because of the fierce wrath of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord against all my wicked neighbours, that touch the inheritance that I have shared out to my people Israel. Thus saith the Lord.

Third Lesson. (Jer. xii. 14-xii. 5.)

Ehold I will pluck them out of their land, and I will pluck the house of Juda out of the midst of them. And when I shall have plucked them out, I will return, and have mercy on them: and I will bring them back, every man to his inheritance, and every man to his land. And it shall come to pass, if they will be taught, and will learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name: The Lord liveth, as they have taught my people to swear by Baal: that they shall be built up in the midst of my people. But if they will not hear, I will utterly pluck out and destroy that nation, saith the Lord.

Thus saith the Lord to me: Go, and get thee a linen girdle, and thou shalt put it about thy loins, and shalt not put it into water. And I got a girdle according to the word of the Lord, and put it about my loins. And the word of the Lord came to me the second time, saying: Take the girdle which thou hast got, which is about thy loins, and arise, and go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. And I went, and hid it by the Euphrates, as the Lord had commanded me. Thus saith the Lord.

This wicked people, that will not hear my words, and that walk in the perverseness of their heart, and have gone after strange gods to serve them, and to adore them: and they shall be as this girdle which is fit for no use. For as the girdle sticketh close to the loins of a man, so have I brought close to me all of the house of Israel, and all the house of Juda, saith the Lord: that they might be my people, and for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: but they would not hear.
